

! NUTZUNGSBEDINGUNGEN !

Dieses Dokument dient als Lernhilfe für Klausuren. Ich übernehme keine Gewähr für die Vollständigkeit und Richtigkeit der Inhalte. Mit der Nutzung dieses Dokuments erkennst du diesen Haftungsausschluss an.

Sollten dir Fehler auffallen oder etwas fehlen, schicke bitte eine private Nachricht an mich.

Viel Spaß beim üben,

Ömer

3. Englisch Klausur 09.04.2026

Visions of The Future

Summary

A summary is for someone who has not read a text and needs to know the essence of what it is about . It should be no longer than 1/3 of the source text.

Before Writing

- Read the text carefully and highlight key words and key sentences
- Divide the text up into parts or subsections
- Find an appropriate sentence or keywords to summarize each subsection

Introduction

- The introductory sentence of the summary should include:
 - the author
 - the title
 - type of text
 - the place & date of publication
 - the main idea & topic

Main Part

- Focus on the essentials/on basic facts

Don't include irrelevant details

- Use simple present

Don't use present progressive

- Use your own words

Don't use quotations or direct speech

- Use formal language

Don't give personal opinion

Don't start analyzing the text

→ ~~giving evidence or starting to explain~~

Don't try to create suspense

- Use connectives to link your sentences

Analysis

An analysis is used to introduce and prove a claim using evidence from the source text.

Introduction

- (if no summary beforehand) The introductory sentence of the analysis should include:
 - the author
 - the title
 - type of text
 - the place & date of publication
 - the main idea & topic
- The introduction should also contain a central claim on what is expected to be found in the analysis, e.g. what the author's overall aim and strategy is

Main Part

- Should prove the central claim in detail
- Should provide textual evidence, e. g.: examples of linguistic devices and strategies and should explain their function and the desired effect
- Should be structured into multiple paragraphs, each one focusing on supporting a certain aspect of the main claim with evidence

Example structure for a paragraph in the Main Part (PEARL Model):

1. Point	• Introduce the point you are going to make in this paragraph.
2. Evidence	• Supply evidence from the text to support your point by quoting or paraphrasing.
3. Analysis	• Explain how this evidence supports your point. Sometimes quotes also need a bit of context.
4. (Repeat)	• If you can give additional evidence for this point, repeat steps 2 und 3.
5. Link	• If possible, write a transition sentence to link this paragraph to the next.

Conclusion

- Should summarize the results of the analysis
- Should refer back to the central claim and the task

Language

- Use varied choice of words
- Use various connectives and linking words
- Use correct spelling, punctuation and grammar
- Use the present tense
- Use formal and neutral language
- Don't use short forms

Linguistic Devices for Analysis Purposes

Stylistic Devices

Stylistic Device	Definition	Purpose / Effect
Alliteration	a combination of words that start with the same letter or sound to make the phrase more memorable (e.g. I murder hate by field or flood)	to make a certain point more memorable, to intensify a certain point, to create a sense of sharpness
Anaphora	the repetition of identical words or phrases at the beginning of a sentences (e.g. I have a dream ..., I have a dream ...)	to put emphasis on sth., to convince the listener
Antithesis	Contrast of opposing words, phrases, views or ideas to highlight differences	To emphasize contrast between two things
Enumeration	Listing items to show range or variety (e.g. Look at the red, grey, blue and yellow lights)	To show scale, diversity, or give an overview
Hyperbole (Exaggeration)	Deliberate exaggeration (e.g. a sea of thousand tears)	To dramatize and create vivid imagery
Metaphor	Direct comparison without "like" or "as" (e.g. My gap year was a long, beautiful dream)	To create strong imagery and deepen understanding
Parallelism	Repetition of sentence structure (e.g. O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?)	To emphasize ideas and create rhythm
Personification	Giving human qualities to objects or ideas (e.g. a smiling moon)	To make descriptions more vivid and engaging
Repetition	Repeating words or phrases (e.g. I have fought against white domination and I have fought against black domination)	To emphasize key ideas and grab attention
Rhetorical Question	Question with no expected answer (e.g. Isn't that great?)	To engage and persuade the audience
Simile	Comparison using "like" or "as" (e.g. she was as hungry as a lion)	To create clear and relatable comparisons

Rhetorical Strategies

Strategy	Definition (with Example)	Possible Effect
Quoting experts and authorities	e.g. scientists, politicians	to back up one's statements and make them and the author seem more reliable and credible
Inclusive language	specify use of pronouns (e.g. unifying 3rd person plural we/us/our); use of pronoun "I" to show a personal reference to a certain topic	to include the audience and give them a feeling of belonging
Personal statements	including personal statements of people affected by the issue at hand	to add a personal touch, to make it easier for the reader to identify with a story
Metaphorical language	words or phrases that trigger specific associations and create an image in the reader's mind	—
Emotive language	e.g. lots of adjectives	to evoke emotions, to cause an audience to react in a particular way
Informal language	—	to create a particular atmosphere, to create a bond with the reader/listener
Statistics	referring to statistics and giving exact numbers	to show that one has very detailed knowledge of a topic and to make one's claims appear grounded in facts
Humour and irony	e.g. by making fun of a situation, commenting humorously on something	to ridicule unacceptable/strange/... behaviour, to make an article more light-hearted and entertaining
Making claims	e.g. No one can deny that ... , without a doubt ... , it is no surprise that ...	to present opinions as facts or as points that are beyond criticism
Word field	—	to create a certain image

Choice of Words

Device	Possible Effect
Using comparatives and superlatives	to exaggerate points or draw attention to extremes to appeal to the readers' emotions, to make them think positively/critically or something
using strong or emotive words (e.g. heartbroken, bloodbath, to worship) negatively connoted words i.e. words that imply negative emotions or associations positively connoted words i.e. words that imply positive emotions or associations informal and vulgar expressions

Register

Degree of formality	Possible effect
formal (e.g. I must say I'm not particularly fond of this films)	to create a feeling of belonging or distance to a certain group neutral (e.g. I never liked his films) informal
colloquial	to appeal to the readers' emotions familiar (e.g. God, I can't stand his films) intimate	