⚠ Achtung: Sie können dieses Dokument verwenden, um für Prüfungen zu lernen, aber ich übernehme keine Verantwortung, wenn irgendwo im Dokument Fehler enthalten sind. Durch die Verwendung dieses Dokuments akzeptieren Sie diese Bedingung. Wenn in Dokument Fehler sind oder etwas fehlt, bitte schreiben sie eine Nachricht mit dem Fehler in Ömers Dokumente Whatsapp Gruppe. ⚠

-Viel Spaß beim üben, Ömer

Englisch KA Vorbereitung 13.12.2024

Speech

Language

-formal English

-Use Present Tense

-varying sentence structure and linking words to connect sentences

Introduction

-Start with an engaging hook to capture the audience's attention

-Introduce the topic of your speech and briefly explain recent developments or different perspectives related to the topic

-present your thesis which you will argue for or against during the speech

Main Part

-Each paragraph in Main Part develops one idea

-Start with a topic sentence, regarding the key aspects addressed in the paragraph

-use examples, statistics, quotes and explanations to support your topic sentence

-Use clear and logical transitions between each paragraph

Conclusion

-Summarize your main ideas without repeating them

-Refer back to your thesis

-End with a call to action or a thought-provoking statement

Characterization

Language

-formal English

-Use Present Tense

-varying sentence structure and linking words to connect sentences

Introduction

-introductory sentence with name of the character, their role and the source material (Name of the Medium, Medium-type, Creator of the medium, Date of release and the Theme)

-make a thesis which you will prove or disprove later

Main Part

-Organise the main part in a topical order (least important aspect for the central claim → most important aspect for the central claim)

-Quote from the text and explain the quotations

-Characters in a medium can be characterised directly or indirectly

>Direct characterisation: The characters/narrator in the medium tells the reader what the character is like (Example: My skinniness always surprised me)

>Indirect characterisation: The reader is drawn to conclusions about a character based on what the characters say or do (Example: John owns books, he must be really smart)

Conclusion

-Summarize your main ideas without repeating them

-Refer back to your thesis

Comparing characters

Language

-formal English

-varying sentence structure and linking words to connect sentences

-Use Present Tense

Introduction

-Introduce the characters, Mention their names, roles, and the source material

-Outline the focus of comparison, Indicate the key aspects you'll examine (Example: personality, values, relationships)

Main Part

Mention the following in your Main Part:

-Similarities: Discuss shared features, actions, motivations or roles

-Differences: Highlight distinct features, actions, motivations or roles

-Relationships or Interactions: Analyze how the characters relate to each other or others

Conclusion

-Summarize the comparison

-Reflect on the significance of these characters in the story

Commenting

Language

-formal English

-varying sentence structure and linking words to connect sentences

-Use present tense, however you can also use simple past while explaining

Introduction

-familiarize your readers with the topic and get their attention

-explain people's opinions and recent developments

-thesis, that needs to be argued for or against

-if given, mention the source material

Main Part

-Each paragraph in Main Part develops one idea

-Start with a topic sentence, regarding the key aspects addressed in the paragraph

-use examples and explanations to support your topic sentence

Conclusion

-Summarize your main ideas without repeating them

-Refer back to your thesis
Analysing with the PEA (or PEE) Method